

any have survived. The decoration is molded onto the lid, while the vertical incised lines that form ridges on the sides of the lid and body were incised. Floral motifs are common decorative motifs, and in this instance the design is a hibiscus. The covered blue-and-white vessel included here was undoubtedly part of a garniture, like many of the pieces included in the shipwreck.

